

TripAdvisor Announces Inaugural Inductees to its Travellers' Choice Awards for Hotels Hall of Fame

16 Elite Establishments Won Awards for 10 Consecutive Years Two Properties Cost Less than $120 Per Night

TripAdvisor®, the travel planning and booking site, today announced the inaugural inductees to its Hall of Fame for Travellers' Choice® for Hotels awards. The Hall of Fame recognizes the only 16 properties to have won a Travellers' Choice for Hotels award for 10 years in a row, 2008 through 2017.

Travellers' Choice for Hotels award winners were determined based on the millions of reviews and opinions collected in a single year from TripAdvisor travellers worldwide. The hallmarks of Travellers' Choice hotels winners are remarkable service, value and quality.

“Winning a Traveller’s Choice award isn’t easy, as less than one percent of the 1.1 million hotels listed on TripAdvisor are award winners. That’s why it’s so extraordinary that these 16 hotels have won a Traveller’s Choice award for ten years straight,” said Barbara Messing, chief marketing officer for TripAdvisor. “We are excited to honour the consistent excellence of these properties with a Hall of Fame award. For a couple of these winners, you can find prices for less than $120 per night, so travellers don’t have to break the bank to book a once-in-a-lifetime hotel experience.”

Europe and Asia featured the most Hall of Fame inductees of any continent with four each, South America featured three award winners, North America and the Caribbean featured two, and Central America featured one winner.
